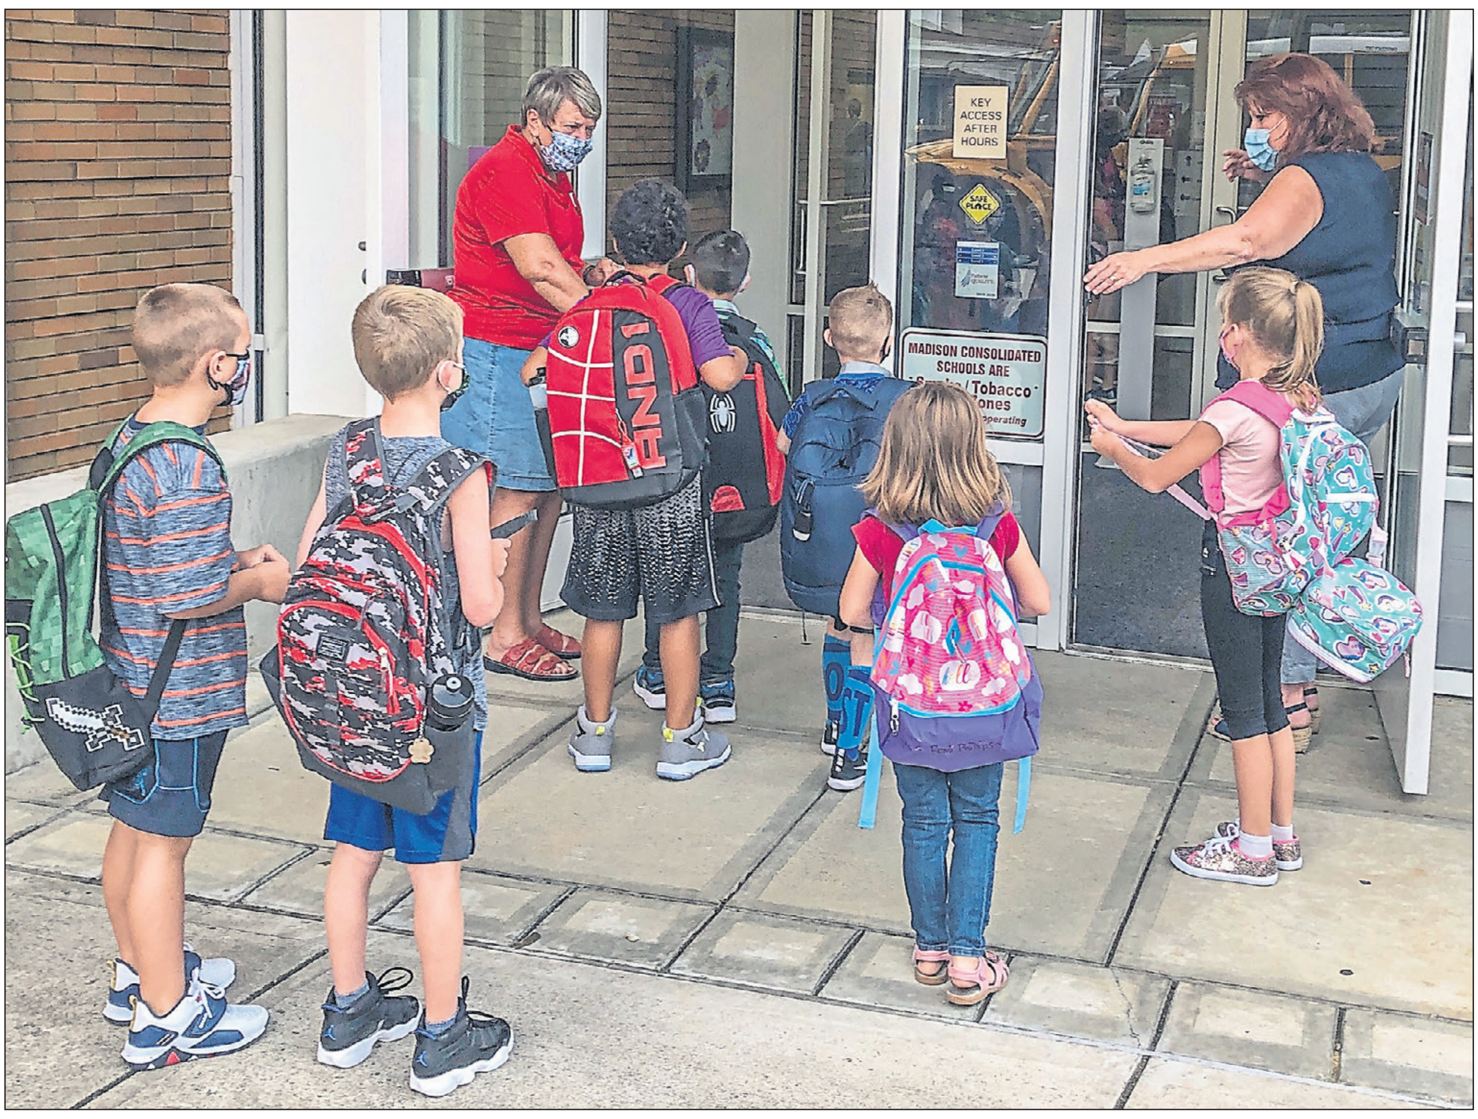
BACK TO SCHOOL



Photos by Collin Overton

Lydia Middleton staff members Lisa Garrett (left) and Amy Hoskins (right) greet students Wednesday morning after being dropped off from buses for their first day of school. Students were screened for signs of the coronavirus or other illnesses, hand sanitizer was handy just inside the door and everyone was wearing a face mask on what was the first day of in-person classes since all buildings were closed in favor of eLearning in the spring.

Students at Lydia Middleton Elementary are dropped off from their bus for the first day of classes since Madison and other schools throughout the region switched to online learning in the spring to help prevent the spread of the COVID-19 pandemic. The return to classrooms was approved by Madison with conditions that students and staff be screened for illness daily, wear face masks except when eating meals and practice social distancing and good hand washing with custodians sanitizing the building daily and drivers sanitizing buses after each route.

Kentucky in-person classes pushed back again

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Trimble County Public Schools had hoped to start face-to-face classes later this month, but students may not be back in school until at least mid-October following new recommendations from Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear.

Beshear made a recommendation Tuesday to postpone in-person instruction, encouraging school districts to not reconvene until Sept. 28 at the earliest. Meanwhile, Trimble County and other school districts in the Commonwealth had been working toward an Aug. 26 reopening date following Beshear's earlier recommendation in July to start face-to-face classes about the third week of August.

Trimble originally planned to open on that date on a regular schedule with options for in-person or virtual instruction at the student and family's choice. After conducting a survey in which 32% of students said they would choose virtual learning due to rising infection rates, the school corporation announced every Friday would be used as a non-traditional instruction (NTI) day for both virtual and in-person students to learn from home and keep in contact through online instruction.

Those plans were changed once again this week following Beshear's announcement and a conference call between his team and TCPS administrators around 3 p.m. Tuesday. Wilcoxson said the governor told administrators that if they were to go against his recommendation to postpone school, they would need to contact both his office and the state commissioner of education to come up with an approved plan on going forward.

Although a hard decision to make as both a superintendent and parent, an emotional Wilcoxson on Tuesday said she felt compelled to follow the recommendation, adding "it only takes one child" to cause an outbreak and complicate things further.

Historic Broadway Tavern back on music scene

CHARLIE'S BEAT

There's something going on at the west end of the business district downtown that warms the cockles of my heart. Music is back at the Historic Broadway Hotel & Tavern!

If you are new to Madison you may not understand the import of this development. Back in the '90s and early 2000s, The Broadway was one of the pillars of our music scene. On any given Saturday scores of people walked our long Main Street from The Broadway to The Electric Lady to JoeyG's, listening to live music and meeting friends. And of course, Thomas Family Winery was part of the loop too.

But time marches on and things evolve and change. Somewhere along the line music fell off at The Broadway. But the commitment is back, and all of us who love live music need to nurture and support it.

"We're starting with Thursday nights," says Broadway Manager Gail Freeman. "I remember the old days, when it was packed with music fans on the weekends, and I want to bring that back. So I talked to our owner Libby (Mann) and we decided to give it a try.

"I also got to talking with Joe Perkinson and Leah Pruett and they helped me realize it was very doable. We have a lot of great musicians in this town who are anxious to support the music movement.

"Like I said, we're starting slow with Thursdays out on

BY CANDACE GWALTNEY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

A medical researcher from Madison who is exploring new anticancer drugs for triple-negative breast cancer has been named the 2020 Vera Bradley Foundation Scholar.

Ryan Higgins, Ph.D., a postdoctoral researcher in the laboratory of Chunhai "Charlie" Hao, M.D., Ph.D., is the new scholar. Higgins, of Madison, is the first Vera Bradley Scholar from the Hoosier state.

The Vera Bradley Foundation Scholars Career Development Program provides two years of research funding to a postdoctoral fellow to pursue a breast cancer research project. As the 2020 Vera Bradley Foundation Scholar, Higgins' research project is "Development of SUMO1 Degraders as the First-in-class Drugs for Metastatic Breast Carcinoma."

A first-in-class drug means that the therapeutic would use a new, innovative mechanism to treat the cancer; this is the first such project for researchers at the Vera Bradley Foundation Center for

Man survives 40-foot I-71 fall into train tracks

James Tonges, 55, Batesville, had just picked up a load of gypsum dust at the Clifty Creek Power Plant in Madison and was heading out of town on US 421 when an oncoming vehicle came into his lane and he took the ditch rather than hit head-on.

BY COLLIN OVERTON

A Louisville man sustained serious injuries when his car went over a bridge railing on a section of I-71 in Carroll County and landed on train tracks 40 feet below.

According to Deputy Rob Miller of the Carroll County Sheriff's Office, Robert Lunceford, 45, of Louisville was northbound on the I-71 bridge above KY 227 Monday when, for unknown reasons, his car left the right side of the interstate and went over the guardrail, falling 40 feet before landing on the railroad tracks running adjacent to the state road.

After the impact, Lunceford managed to leave the vehicle and make his way to the Marathon gas station down KY 227 while yelling for help. Employees inside heard Lunceford and called for police, who initially did not know about the crash, Miller said.

Officers arriving at the scene discovered Lunceford's vehicle. According to Miller, the car somehow did a lateral roll in mid-air and landed on its wheels, which may have contributed to Lunceford's survival.

"He had the best possible outcome based on how he landed," Miller noted.

The car knocked out the Kentucky Utilities power lines that run alongside the CSX tracks, and crews worked until about 4:30 a.m. to repair the lines and restore power to residents in the area, Miller said.

Lunceford was flown to University Hospital in Louisville with internal injuries that included a punctured lung and broken ribs. Miller was unsure of his current condition, but said Lunceford's mother reached out Wednesday to obtain an accident report and indicated that he was alive and in the intensive unit care.

Police are still unsure on why Lunceford's vehicle left the roadway, Miller said.

TRUCK DRIVER ESCAPES INJURY

A Batesville man escaped injury but the dump truck he was driving was heavily damaged Tuesday afternoon in a crash on US 421 north near the Jefferson Proving Ground.

James Tonges, 55, had just picked up a load of gypsum dust at the Clifty Creek Power Plant in Madison and was heading out of town when he said an oncoming vehicle came into his lane and he took the ditch rather than hit head-on.

The tri-axle dump truck Tonges was driving for Laudick Trucking Inc., in Sunman, went off the side of the roadway and flipped over, losing the load of gypsum and damaging the truck with Tonges escaping injury.

The accident is being investigated by Indiana State Police and the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office and so far the second vehicle has not been identified.

The sheriff office was also busy on two other injury accidents on Tuesday, one at 6:56 p.m. on Chicken Run Road near Borcherding Road and the other at 9:37 p.m. in the parking lot of the Circle K, 139 W. Lagrange Road, Hanover, when a pickup truck crashed into the side of the convenience store.

Additional details on both accidents were unavailable by presstime but charges were filed in both crashes.

Derek Godsey was charged on a warrant and for failure to have an operator's license in the Chicken Run Road crash and Bobby Cooley cited for driving while suspended and no proof of insurance in the Circle K crash.

6 Democrats join ticket for November election

BY COLLIN OVERTON

After a COVID-19 delayed primary election that featured mostly Republicans — and many of them running unopposed — the Jefferson County Democratic Party has added six challengers to fill ballot vacancies for Jefferson County Council and Commission while incumbent Coroner Rodney Nay will seek to retain that office on Tuesday, Nov. 3.

The November list shows three Democrats running for county council-at-large as newcomers Richard Paul Hill, Curt Vanderbur and Joe Cline will face Gary Copeland and incumbents Pam Crozier and Heather Foy, who fended off challengers Charles Johnson and Michael T. Scott in the primary.

In the race for commissioner, David Alcorn and Jim Crone will face longtime incumbents Robert Little and David Bramer after both were uncontested in the Republican primary. Little is seeking his third term as middle district commissioner while Bramer is seeking his second representing the lower district.

Incumbent Coroner Rodney Nay, a Democrat, had missed the filing deadline for the primary in February but is running unopposed in November. Nay and Molly O'Connor, the incumbent recorder and another Democrat, remain the only candidates running unopposed for county office. Jefferson County GOP Chair Karl Eaglin had said the party did not plan to nominate an opponent for either office.

The race was set earlier for the remaining open seats. Democrat Mary J. Stotts and Republican Blaine Goode, both uncontested in the primary, will face off in the election for Superior Court Judge following the retirement of current Judge Michael Hensley. Democrat Jon Kuner will attempt to unseat Mike Pittman as county surveyor. Pittman is seeking his first elected term after the GOP picked him to serve the unexpired term of Jeff Daghir, who had resigned. Both ran unopposed in June.

In the race for county treasurer, Democrat John Hutchinson will face incumbent Melinda Hallgarth-Klopp, who is seeking her second term in office. Both ran uncontested in the primary.

Madison's $1.5M Cub Field ready to make debut

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

David Campbell

Madison athletic director Joe Bronkella, left, and head football coach Leroy Wilson III stand in front of the school's new football field, which will be finished in time to debut at Saturday's scrimmage.

For decades, Madison has looked at other schools' football facilities with a mixture of admiration and envy. But the Cubs have no need for envy anymore.

Madison Consolidated High School will unveil its new Cub Field on Saturday when the Cubs host Hoosier Hills Conference foe Floyd Central in a scrimmage. The nearly $1.5 million multi-use facility features a new turf field, a college-level track, a modern scoreboard and the pride of every member of the athletic department.

"In 20 years of coaching I have not seen a facility like this. It is state of the art," said Madison boys track & field coach Scott Holcroft, a former assistant football coach at the school. "Next to the state meet, we may have the best track facility. The scoreboard will be just like the state meet. Times will go up almost instantly as the kids finish the race. I can't wait to see what teams want to come to Madison's track and run now!"

Needing to spend funds the state requires go only toward facility upgrades, Madison School Board approved the first phase of the project in February and construction by the Motz Group began in April. While the school was shut down due to the COVID-19 pandemic, work continued on the 60-year-old facility, only stopping when the crew headed to Indianapolis for a week to work on Lucas Oil Field.

The progress could be seen while driving by on Clifty Drive, but for those who will call the field home, a closer inspection was needed.

"Ever since workouts began, I would drive to school along Gallatin Way and go as slow as I could," Madison football head coach Leroy Wilson III said.

"You can't drive by it and not smile and be excited about it for the kids. I'm not even playing on it and I'm pumped for the kids."

Schools across the state have been converting grass fields to turf fields in recent years but Madison was a notable exception. While coaches and workers did their best to make the field presentable, by the end of each season, the worn and battered turf was almost unplayable.

Madison Athletic Director Joe Bronkella made getting a turf field one of his priorities when he took over four years ago and seeing the completed project brings a smile to his face.

"It's really exciting to see how much progress was made and how quick it went up," Bronkella said. "After they hauled the dirt away and laid the base, they started laying down the green and it was just pure excitement. It was like Christmas morning waiting and waiting for it to open."

The overall project is far from completion but five Madison athletic programs, as well as the marching band, will call the field home this school year. The field itself will not only accommodate boys and girls soccer and boys and girls track & field, but both cross country teams will run a meet on the track next week.

But football will be the primary beneficiary. The Cubs will play at least seven varsity games on the field this year alone and Wilson said that he can feel the excitement radiating from his players.

"In my opinion, being at other schools that have done this project, it gives a new life and

New faces will play big roles as boys soccer teams kick off season

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

There will plenty of new faces for all four local high school boys soccer teams this year, but expectations will remain largely the same when the season starts this weekend.

Madison reached the regional championship game for the first time in 13 years last season and has hopes of doing so again while Shawe, Southwestern and Switzerland each look to challenge for Ohio River Valley Conference and sectional titles.

A look at each team:

MADISON CUBS

Madison posted an historic season in 2019, winning 12 matches and reaching the regional championship game for the first time since 2007. And although the Cubs graduated several key players from that team, there is every reason to believe Madison can repeat that success this year.

"After winning sectionals last year and making it to the Elite Eight in 2A, the target is now on our back," Madison coach Kyle Bipes said. "Getting the boys to understand that now everyone wants to beat us will be a learning curve, but one that I know this team can handle."

Senior Will Heitz, the reigning Madison Courier Player of the Year after scoring 10 goals and dishing out 13 assists last year, will be the team's offensive leader but it will be defense that carries the Cubs. Senior Zach Forner, who has developed into one of the state's top goalkeepers, anchors the defense while senior Grant Smith and juniors Jack Kelsey and Carter Schutte give Madison an experienced back line.

Aiding Heitz up front will be a returner and two newcomers. Sophomore Adriano Martinez scored three goals and had six assists last year and could be the breakout player in the area while junior Henry Grote comes over from Shawe after scoring six goals and handing out four assists last year. High-scoring freshman Ian Eiriksson will figure into the mix as well.

"Preparing for this year has not been the same as my previous two years, but we are eager to finally get out on the field and get this season started," Bipes said.

Madison opens the 2020 campaign at Corydon on Saturday then heads to Southwestern on Thursday, Aug. 20. The Cubs' home opener will be Thursday, Aug. 27 against Jennings County.

SHAWE HILLTOPPERS

Shawe will enter the 2020 season with an eclectic mix of veterans and youngsters after going 5-9-1 last season. As a result, second-year coach Cameron Willoughby isn't sure what to expect from his team at times, but he's excited to find out.

"Our team is a little varied in their experience levels. We have some that have never played organized soccer before, who are still working on fundamentals, but several of our underclassmen have great potential and athleticism, their challenge will be adjusting to the speed and size of the high school game," Willoughby said. "I really like the overall composition of our team. It is great to have some depth that we haven't always had, it creates healthy competition to help push everyone to get better, while also allowing players that need time to develop their skills time to do that."

Gage Dermon is the squad's only senior but Davis Grote, Hunter Kennett, Eric Liu, Louis Liu, Wyatt Lundergan, Clay McAllister, Wyatt Nichter, Cristian Ortiz and Christian Whitham each saw significant action last year. Twelve freshmen and junior transfer Johan Betancourth make up the rest of the squad.

Shawe opens the season on Aug. 21 and 22 when it plays in the Panther Cup at Jennings County. The Hilltoppers' home opener will be Monday, Aug. 24 against South Dearborn.

SOUTHWESTERN REBELS

With just one senior, eight freshmen and a new head coach, Southwestern will have a much different look in 2020 after going 2-13-3 last season.

New head coach Seth Shields, who takes over for Kevin Dillman after serving as his assistant for five years, knows that his team has a big task ahead, but he also knows this group has what it takes to be successful.

Eder medalist as Madison defeats Henryville at Sunrise Golf Course

By David Campbell

Madison's Jenna Imel pitches onto the green at the par-5 fifth hole during the Cubs' match on Monday at Sunrise Golf Course.

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Madison's girls golf team posted an easy 204-264 win over Henryville at Sunrise Golf Course on Monday.

Junior Keara Eder wasn't as sharp as her usual standards, but her four-over 40 was still good enough to claim low-medalist honors. Jenna Imel shot a 47, Grace Bronkella had a 53, Gracie Gasaway carded a 64 and Ally Skirvin had a non-scoring 65.

"I'm happy the girls were able to come out and get a win. I still think, as a group, we still have a ways to go before we start firing on all cylinders, but that's OK," Madison coach Jake Shockley said. "What I really like about this group this year is that they are really hard workers. I think the returners learned last year that hard work can pay off, and that seems to be rubbing off on everyone else."

Taytum Easton led Henryville with a 53, Sydney Kleinert carded a 67 and Annie Spicer and Emma Wallis each shot 72s.

Madison was scheduled to play at Jeffersonville today, but that match was postponed until September due to COVID-19 issues at Jeffersonville. The Cubs' next match will be the Fuzzy Zoeller Invitational hosted by Providence on Saturday.

SHAWE OPENS SEASON WITH WIN

Shawe's girls golf team picked up a 263-277 win over host Switzerland County at Belterra Golf Course on Tuesday in the Hilltoppers' season opener. Neither Southwestern nor Jac-Cen-Del fielded complete teams.

Freshman Kira Wells shot a 57 to lead the Hilltoppers while Bailey Kilgore had a 65, Yolett Perez shot 69 and Gia Craig carded a 72.

No individual results were available for Switzerland County, Southwestern or Jac-Cen-Del.

"Last night's rain along with the nerves that come from playing your first high school match made Belterra a tough opponent, but overall, I thought the team played well," Shawe coach David Hertz said. "I was extremely proud of Kira to come out and medal in the first match of her career. She left some shots out there but as she improves her short game, her scores will come down."

Shawe and Southwestern are scheduled to face Milan and Jac-Cen-Del at Butler Falls Golf Course in Hanover today. Southwestern then hosts Trinity Lutheran on Friday and heads back to Belterra on Monday. Shawe hosts Henryville and New Washington at Sunrise on Monday.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Tereshko misses cut at U.S. Amateur

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Former Madison Cub and current Hanover golf head coach Justin Tereshko missed the cut for the U.S. Amateur on Tuesday.

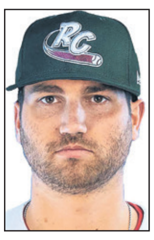
Justin Tereshko

Tereshko opened the tournament, held at the Bandon Dunes Golf Resort in Bandon, Oregon, with a 79 on Monday but regrouped to shoot a one-over 72 on Tuesday. In the end his 36-hole 151 total was six strokes off the cut.

Wilson Furr of Jackson, Mississippi, won the stroke play portion of the event with a 132 (70-62).

THURSTON SCORELESS IN OUTING

Madison's Ryan Thurston struck out the only batter he faced in Fargo-Moorhead's 4-1 victory over Winnipeg in the first game of a double header on Tuesday.



Ryan Thurston

Thurston, a left-handed reliever, lowered his season earned run average to 6.00 with the brief outing.

In 18 innings pitched, he has struck out 27 while walking eight and has a record of 1-2.

Fargo-Moorhead, which is mired in last place in the six-team American Association at 12-21, wraps up its series with Winnipeg tonight and hosts Chicago for three games starting Friday.

SEASON

"I tell my players that not only am I trying to mold them into great soccer players on the field, but also trying to mold them into successful and respectful young men in school and in life," Shields said. "We work hard as a team, we win as a team, we lose as a team, and no matter the outcome, we move forward as a team."

Senior Brady McLain will anchor the defensive backfield after playing goalie much of last year while junior Brandon Smith will be the team's top playmaker on offense. Juniors Kaden Zellers, Bryce Hatton and Alex Webster will bring some much-needed experience to the squad.

Sophomore Salvador Hernandez and freshmen Peyton Cloud, Joe Drossart, Mizael Hernandez, Matt Mingione and William Stockdale will get thrown into the fire right away in key roles.

Southwestern opens the season on Tuesday at Hauser. The Rebels then host Madison on Thursday, Aug. 20 in their home opener.

SWITZERLAND COUNTY PACERS

Sarah Wolf takes over as coach at Switzerland County after the Pacers went 4-10-2 last season under Brian Grigsby.

The Pacers lose all-conference performer Damian Breeck to graduation as well as goalie Dallas Snider but have several young players back who got plenty of experience last year.

Switzerland opens the season on Tuesday at Henryville. The Pacers then host Austin on Thursday, Aug. 20 in their home opener.

it gives a new look and it gets people excited about the football program," Wilson said. "We're already seeing the effects in year one and we haven't even been able to practice on it yet. The kids are really excited. It just creates a different feel in practice."

Along with the new turf field and scoreboard, new LED lights have been installed around the field and new facilities for shot put, discus, high jump and pole vault have been added. The school is hopeful of hosting one of the IHSAA Track & Field sectionals in May. The next phase, which does not yet have a starting date, will include a new pressbox, fieldhouse and entry way.

The field itself will make its debut Saturday with the scrimmage against Floyd Central, after Salem was forced to cancel due to positive COVID cases in its school. A maximum of 250 fans will be allowed into the facility and face masks will be required.

Regardless of the restrictions, everybody involved can't wait to use the new facility.

"As a coach of multiple sports that directly benefit from this facility, I see just how many kids, sports teams, clubs and extra-curricula benefit from it," said Patrick Maschino, the girls track & field coach and an assistant football coach. "By having a facility this updated and new, it opens up so many doors for us to be able to host bigger events for track and field, and gives us a sense of pride when other teams and communities come visit our school. Everyone wins with this project being done, and we are blessed to have administration that supports investing in our athletes and coaches."

our front sidewalk area. Joe Perkinson will be playing all through August and September, but I'm looking to work Chip Binzer in there somewhere, maybe in early September. We have a good situation if it rains, where we can just move into our side patio area.

"We are also planning a big Fourth Friday show with a full band on the corner at the old gas station once a month. Libby owns that property now and we have a small fence up around it so we can control liquor sales. Our first show on the corner will be Aug. 21 with the Jimmy Davis Band. I'm Jimmy's sister, by the way.

"We've seen a lot of changes over the years with The Taproom opening up and pulling a larger crowd down there for live music. Now we want to start creating that kind of energy on this end of Main Street. We've done it before and we can do it again.

"We're also feeling a positive change with the whole Madison Music Movement that is going on. I personally think it's a great idea. We've always had a strong music scene in this town, and it only makes sense to build on that foundation and make it a bigger part of what we are.

"I want to encourage all the live music fans to put The Broadway back on their radar screens. Next time you are out on a Thursday night, take a walk up the street and see what's happening at The Broadway. If you support us, live music will be here to stay.

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

A really cool thing has been happening in the alley next to Thomas Family Winery most Friday nights this summer. Spontaneous music shows have been popping up whenever the weather is nice and the mood strikes. It's not official, and it's not totally planned, but it has been awesome. A Who's Who of Madison's music royalty has set up an amp or a drum kit and played for tips. I've seen Jimmy Davis there, Daryl Hewitt, Chip Binzer, Amy Noel and many more. A little bird told me that a certain Texas swing band out of Vevay might be there this Friday at 8 p.m., weather permitting. Come by and check it out. If it's raining, pop under the big patio roof at Thomas Family and enjoy some wine and cheese!

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

CLASSES

Still, without an online approach that works better than the methods used in the spring, and connects students with staff to get them the needed support, many will continue falling behind, she said.

"My biggest concern is there are so many needs for our students, and they need to see their teachers, they need to have those relationships. We recognize all of that, and it's just difficult to know that even though we're doing all we possibly can, there are still so many kids that struggle," Wilcoxson said.

Wilcoxson and other administrators spent about three hours Tuesday planning for opening under the virtual umbrella, which will utilize Google Classroom and modifications for students without easy access to the internet. Dubbed "Raider Virtual Academy," the online learning system will be used by all students until the district potentially returns the week after fall break on Oct. 12. Those who registered to learn online this year will stay with Raider Virtual Academy through the rest of the semester.

Unlike the paper packets sent home in the spring, the online learning will allow for more interaction between classes, virtual field trips and video lessons. Other online learning, like Summit, will also be embedded into Google Classroom for access. In the case of early elementary students who need tactile activities like coloring, cutting and drawing, paper packets with those activities will be included with the online material, Wilcoxson said.

Internet access is a major issue, however, as indicated by a survey conducted by the school last month that found 22% of respondents do not have WiFi access and another 11% were unable to indicate if they had access or not.

Because of that, students without access will be able to pick up weekly USB drives containing lessons, instructional videos, resources and assignments and upload those resources to school-issued Chromebooks. Students will then complete assignments offline and submit them when they go back to their school for the next week's learning materials.

Students will also be able to access free WiFi at 10 hotspot locations throughout the county: Milton Christian Church, Mt. Byrd Christian Church, Milton Municipal Building, Milton Methodist Church, Maggie's Garden & More, Providence Baptist Church, Trimble County Public Library, New Life Assembly of God, the Trimble County Board of Education office and DG Powersports.

The district will start scheduling orientation as early as Aug. 25 to get students in and show them how online materials will be accessed and submitted, Wilcoxson said. Scheduling for Chromebook distribution will begin next week.

On top of orientation and regular communication with instructors, the school district also hopes to set aside times for groups of 10 students to drop by and complete work on school grounds, which the governor permits, Wilcoxson said.

"A student might just need to get in for a couple hours, so we want to be able to support them in doing that," she said.

Trimble County will also resume the meal plan it started last spring. Students will be able to pick up five day's worth of breakfasts, lunches and snacks at their home school from noon to 1:30 p.m. every Friday, and meal delivery for those who qualify is available upon request. Meals from Dare to Care, a Louisville-based food bank, are also available via delivery every Wednesday starting Sept. 9 for students who qualify, according to reopening plans released by TCPS Wednesday.

Carroll County Schools will reopen on a similar schedule, according to a Facebook announcement from the district. Unlike Trimble, Beshear's announcement did not change much for the district schedule since the Carroll County Board of Education approved Superintendent Danny Osborne's recommendation last month to hold classes under a distance learning model for the first nine weeks.

Under a distance model, students attend classes in-person when allowed by the school district, depending on whether holding class is considered safe. When in-person classes are not permitted, students participate in distance learning primarily through Google Classroom so Carroll County was already prepared when in-person classes were be called off.

At the earliest, in-person classes will resume in late October, the district said.

"Gov. Beshear asked all school districts to delay the start of in-person classes until at least Sept. 28," Osborne said. "The Governor's request does not affect us here in Carroll County since we have already pushed our in-person start date beyond that point. The beginning of our school year remains Wednesday, Aug. 26 via Distance Learning."

Plans for Thanksgiving, winter and spring breaks at Carroll County are intact, and the scheduled last day for students is May 26, 2021. Free meals for students were continued into the summer and will still be provided for the fall.

"This is a very fluid situation," Osborne said. "Our goal of creating a safe and healthy environment for our students and teachers to work and learn in, while still meeting the needs of the whole child — socially, emotionally, developmentally and academically — remains the same. Fortunately, our board members were proactive in getting in front of this recommendation, which provided us the necessary time to create an effective plan to address these needs through Distance Learning or Virtual School."

Also at Tuesday's meeting, Trimble's Board of Education appointed McKenzie Harper, former District 2 representative, to District 4 following the resignation of District 4 representative Billy Spegal, whose family has relocated to North Carolina. Harper resigned from her District 2 seat at the July board meeting due to moving out of that district into District 4. District 2 is now vacant.

Breast Cancer Research.

"Triple negative breast cancer is termed that because it lacks hormone receptors that other breast cancers possess, therefore, you can't target those receptors therapeutically like other cancers," Higgins said. "Because of the lack of receptors to target, the development of triple negative breast cancer therapeutics has been a challenge."

Instead, Higgins will work alongside Hao to target a protein called SUMO1 (small ubiquitin-related modifier 1). Hao's research team had previously identified the first small molecule degraders of SUMO1 protein, which has been implicated in driving breast cancer as well as many other cancers.

Hao is co-program leader of the Experimental and Developmental Therapeutics research program at the at the IU Simon Comprehensive Cancer Center and a member of the Vera Bradley Foundation Center for Breast Cancer Research at IU School of Medicine.

"Traditional therapeutics have focused on inhibiting proteins that drive cancer," Higgins said. "Although inhibitors are proven effective therapies, drug resistance is often an unavoidable problem, therefore novel therapies are needed. Within the past five to 10 years, a new class of therapeutics called protein degraders have emerged. They work by degrading, rather than inhibiting, a protein of interest from the cell, potentially making them a more effective therapeutic than inhibitors."

Higgins is working now to develop a drug that functions as a SUMO1 protein degrader.

"We have performed several drug screens and identified a compound that degrades the SUMO1 protein, and we have found that it's very effective in treating breast cancer cell lines, specifically triple negative breast cancer cell lines," Higgins said.

Researchers have also shown that the compound they are developing effectively slows tumor growth in patient-derived xenografts, or mouse models developed with patient tumor cells.

"We have modified the compound through medicinal chemistry to make it more specific to its target. This lowers toxicity and increases its ability to degrade the SUMO1 protein, which in turn kills the cancer cells while limiting affects to normal cells," Higgins said.

Ultimately, Higgins hopes his research will result in clinical applications for breast cancer patients.

"I'm honored to be named this year's Vera Bradley Scholar. I look forward to working diligently on the research proposal and trying to bring this research to a clinical trial at IU," he said.

Higgins, a 2008 graduate of Madison, earned a bachelor's degree in biochemistry from Indiana University Southeast and a doctoral degree from Florida State University. He joined Hao's lab in 2019. In addition to Hao, mentors for Higgins' project are Harikrishna Nakshatri, B.V.Sc., Ph.D., and Kathy D. Miller, M.D.

DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I realize that this is a difficult issue on which to offer advice, but I suspect it might have widespread interest.

I have found that many friends with whom I have coffee in the morning talk in an exuberant way, and in the process, spew pieces of bagels, croissants and more across the table, often into my face or food. This is also a frequent, if not inevitable, occurrence at cocktail parties, in which hors d'oeuvres are passed around to people who may not have the clearest awareness of what is going on.

I have resolved not to be a participant in this "wood chipper" game by chewing slowly and carefully and not speaking while I'm chewing. But I wonder how you would advise staying out of the fray of unwelcome food particles while not insulting well-meaning people. — No Wood Chipper

Dear NWC: Nobody likes a salivary shower, but if you find yourself irritated with most of your friends over this, the problem might be on your side of the table. I suggest you plan your socializing around activities that don't involve eating as much as possible, and keep a wide berth the rest of the time.

Dear Annie: I am 77 years old and have known for most of my life that I'm not beautiful. I have a sharp chin and nose and have actually had a few warts removed. I realized when I was a child that I was not cute — a fact that was reinforced through my teen and young adult years. In my late teens, I was thrilled to marry a handsome "bad boy" type. You can imagine how that turned out!

Then I married the most kind, gentle, caring man. We raised a family, and I felt we had a very successful marriage. He encouraged me in many endeavors such as returning to school and finding a more suitable career.

One problem is that my husband is so kind that he would never criticize anything about me, especially my appearance.

And now, since the pandemic, I've been stuck at home, with no weekly visit to the beauty salon and no makeup or fashionable clothes. These past few months have made me painfully aware that I'm "ugly"!

Recently, a neighbor came to call (admittedly, not a very smart person) and related how when she first met me, I looked just like a friend of hers who she said looked "just like a witch" as she got older.

That was all it took! I now doubt why my husband married someone who looks like me. Does everyone I meet immediately also think I resemble a witch? I feel all of my qualities as an empathetic, successful person are of no avail. — Witchy Woman

Dear WW: I know it's been said so many times that the words practically have no meaning, but it still bears repeating: Real beauty is on the inside. A loving heart means infinitely more than a pretty face. And when you exude warmth and empathy, there's no way anyone would mistake you for a witch. Be as kind to yourself as you are to others: Start each morning and end each night by looking in the mirror and saying, "I love you."

Stay healthy while working out

Dear Annie: Our local gym opened back up recently. Only half the machines are in use, to encourage social distancing, and only half the lockers and bathroom stalls are available. We're supposed to all wear masks, but of course, sometimes masks come off during exercise when people are breathing hard or jostling around. I understand that that happens. What bothers me is that there is one guy who never wipes down the equipment when he's done using it. I see him almost every time I'm at the gym, and it really ticks me off. With everything that is going on, it just seems especially ignorant or rude. I've given him pointed looks but that's about it. Would I be out of line saying something to him? — Gym Rat

Dear Gym Rat: Who could take issue with a friendly reminder like "Don't forget to wipe down the machines"? That said, now, as before the pandemic, it's always best to assume the person before you forgot to sanitize the equipment. Give everything a thorough wipe down with a disinfectant that has been proven to kill the coronavirus germs, such as Clorox Disinfecting Wipes, Lysol Brand All-Purpose Cleaner or hydrogen peroxide. (Find a full list at epa.gov/coronavirus.)

DEAR ANNIE

You should also check with management: They should have employees frequently passing through the facility and disinfecting all equipment as well as issuing reminders over the intercom to encourage patrons to do the same. A germy gym is no place to get healthy.

Dear Annie: In this trying time — or anytime — could you please remind all parents not to let their children snub, belittle and malign substitute teachers. I had 34 years of teaching experience when I substituted. Each time I substituted, I had children under age 8, who would: not stand upon request, not put books, crayons away upon request and not pick up a dropped pencil or jacket upon request. Don't parents teach children we are taking their place as adults responsible for their care? Don't parents know we all have college degrees and are trained to teach? Some like me have specialty certifications and get called in for that reason alone.

Also, it would be wonderful if teachers left a weekly lesson plan book in the desk by Friday night in the event of illness or tragedy over the weekend. — Besieged Substitute

Dear Besieged: I don't know why having a substitute teacher that brings out the worst even in the best-behaved classes, but it does. I'm grateful for substitute teachers who keep showing up for our children in spite of this treatment. We need you!

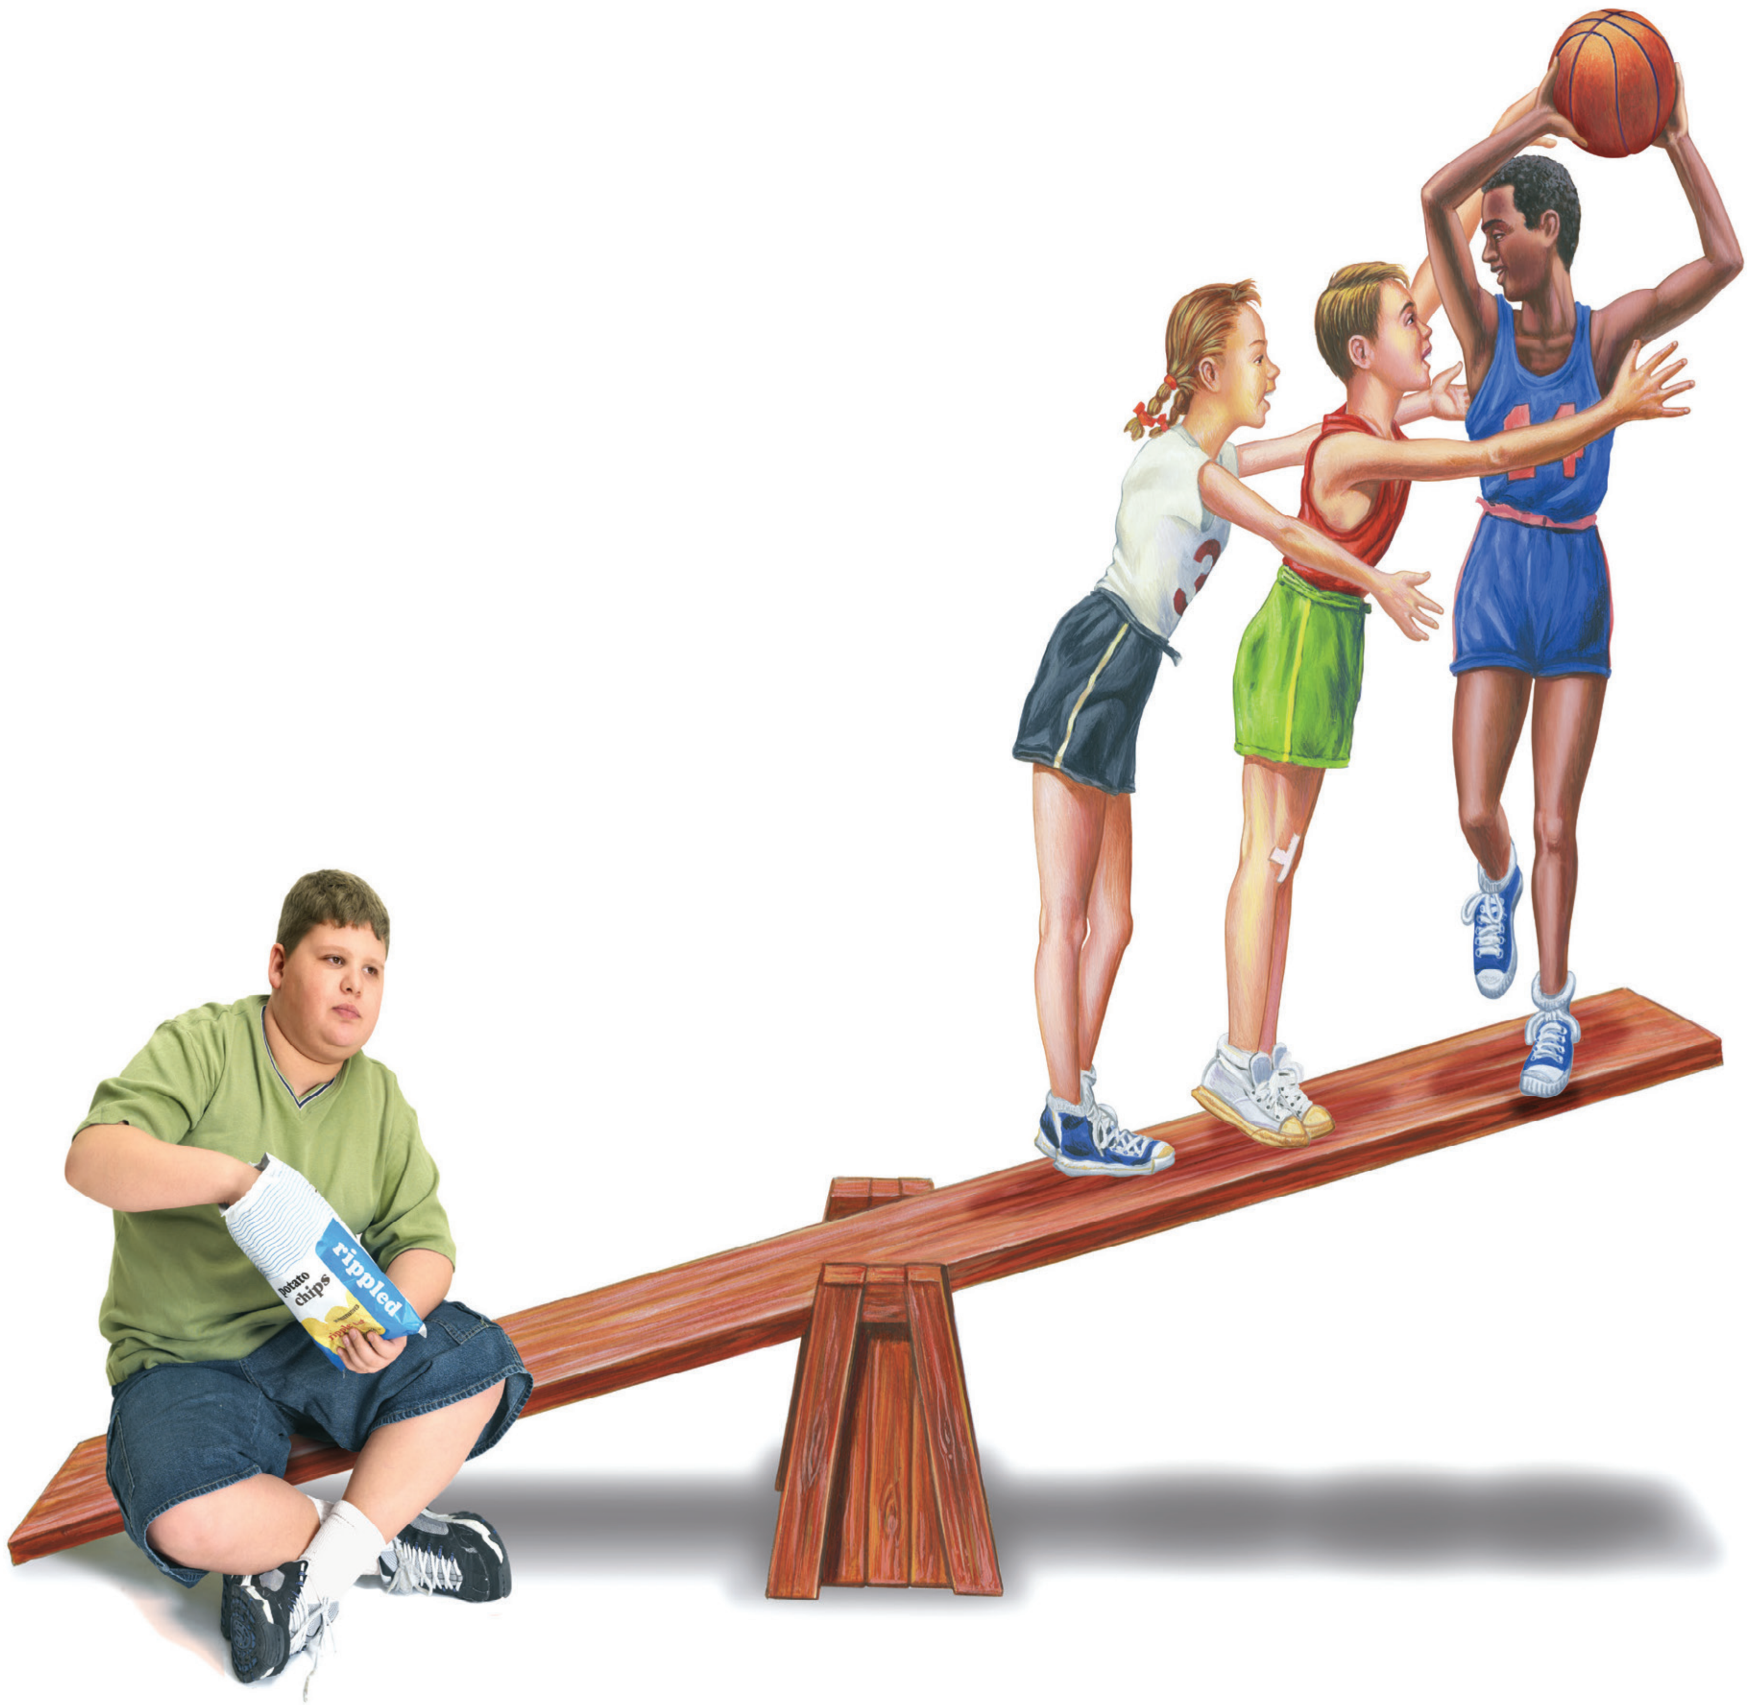
Once, kids played like their lives depended on it.
If only kids still did.



Chunky. Hefty. Big-boned. For parents of overweight children, it's easy to minimize reality. But the consequences of a heavy childhood can be devastating later in life. In fact, the lack of physical activity in our society, combined with poor food choices, may actually result in a generation of children with shorter life spans than their parents.

Encourage physical activity and better nutrition. Get out there with your kids and throw the ball, strap on the bike helmet, lace up the hiking shoes. Do whatever it takes to get your kids as active as kids once were. Activity, diet and weight-bearing exercise will help your child live stronger, and live longer.
